The King's Ordinance for facilitating the Return into the Kingdom to the French of all Professions, who are gone to Italy and other Foreign Countries.

HIS Majesty being informed, that of the great Number of French of all Professions, who are gone to Italy and other Foreign Countries, there arrive every Day some in the Ports of the said Countries, with the Design to embark and come back to France: But the greater Part of them being destitute of all Means, the Captains, Owners, and Masters of the Ships and other Vessels of the Nation make Difficulties, which augment the hard Circumstances they are under, and hinder their Return into the Kingdom: And the King being willing to facilitate to such of his Subjects whose Necessities shall be known to the Consuls of the French Nation established in the said Ports of Italy, and other Foreign Countries, the Means for returning into France, his Majesty, by the Advice of the Duke of Orleans, his Uncle and Regent, ordains all Captains, Owners, and Masters of French Ships and other Vessels, who shall be in the Ports of Italy and other Foreign Countries, to take on Board when they are ready to return to France, the French Passengers of all Professions, whom the Consuls of the Nation established in the said Port shall give them, viz. for 4 to 6 of such Passengers for one Ship, and from 2 to 3 for one Bark or other Vessels; for each of which Passengers, his Majesty orders to be paid to the said Captains, Owners, and Masters, 6 Sols per Diem, both for Passage and Provisions, during the Time they shall be on board them, but among those Passengers shall be no Soldier who deserted from the King's Troops, his Majesty forbidding to send them back to France, and upon the said Captains, Owners, or Masters bringing the Certificates of the Consuls for embarking the said Passengers, and other Certificates for landing them in France, which shall be given them by the Commissaries of the Ports where they arrive, signed and approved of by the Intendant of the said Ports, they shall be paid by the Treasurer-General of the Navy or his Clerk at the Rate of 6 Sols per Diem for the Passage and Provisions of each, to be repaid to the said Treasurer-General upon the Ordinances to be issued by his Majesty to this End. His Majesty ordains all Captains, Owners, and Masters to conform with the present Ordinance, on pain of being fined 300 Livres; and the Consuls of the said Ports of Italy or other foreign Countries, to cause the same to be published where Occasion shall require; and to register in the Office of their Consulship, to draw up verbal Processes, and make the necessary Proceedings against the Offenders; and to send them in due Form to the Officers of the Admiralty in order to proceed against them pursuant to the Tenour of this present Ordinance. His Majesty ordains the said Officers of the Admiralty to cause it likewise to be published and registred, and to see it put in Execution. Done at Paris the 15th of October 1719.

Neustetel, in the Principality of Glogaw in Silesia, Oct. 29. Yesterday the King of Poland arrived here from Saxony, and proceeded after Dinner for Frausta. We hear his Majesty designs to make a Stay of three Weeks in Poland, to dispose of the Employments become vacant during his Absence, the Diet being to be put off till May next: Yet the common Opinion is, Communication will be made to the Senate, of the King's having accepted the King of Great Britain's Mediation for a Peace with Sweden, in order to have the Republick's Concurrence.

Heidelberg, Oct. 31. At the Audience which Mr. Haldane had of the Elector Palatine, among other things he said, that the Protestant Kings, Princes, and Powers, are obliged to maintain those who profess the same Faith with them, in the Possession of the free Exercise of their Worship, and the Privileges annexed to it; he represented to the Elector in a lively manner the Grievances of the Protestants in general, but particularly those of his Reformed Subjects: He declared at the same time, that all the Protestant Powers are resolved to join with the King of Great Britain in the Measures he shall take for maintaining that Religion, and reversing all that has been attempted against it. M. Hecht, the King of Prussia's Minister, has remonstrated the same to the Elector with the like Energy; M. Spina, the Minister of the States General, has not yet had his Audience; but the Electoral Court being returned hither Yesterday from Schwetzingen, he will soon be admitted, after which those Protestant Ministers are to enter into Conferences with the Electoral Commissioners. The ancient and principal Ministers of the Elector's Court decline medling with this Affair, which they say was undertaken inconsiderately, and without their Knowledge, at the Advice of two young Men, who on that Account were [illegible] the Dignity of Councellours; so that the Court is at present in Pain how to save the Elector's Reputation: Those young Councellours propose therefore, that the 80th Article in the Catechism of Heidelberg be couched in softer Terms, than calling the Roman Catholick Tenets Superstitious, and such like Expressions, and to leave the Church of the Holy Ghost to the Papists: But the Protestant Ministers are not disposed to abate any thing, and will insist upon an entire Redress, well knowing, that the like Concessions will only be made use of as Precedents of making new Attempts and Encroachments. The Roman Catholicks are vexed to hear from Holland that the Magistrates of Leiden have intimated to the Popish Priests in that Town, that unless they procure at Rome, or the Palatine Court, the re-instating and securing of the Protestants in the Palatinate in their religious Liberties, they shall be turned out of that Place, and their Churches shut up; easily foreseeing that the like Reprizals must be expected in other Places of the United Netherlands.

Hambourg, Nov. 3. It is advised, that the King of Great Britain having left Gohre on the 31st past, went to Zell, where his Majesty dined with the Dutchess Dowager, and afterwards proceeded to Hanover. Advices from Sweden say, the Forces in that Kingdom are to be augmented with 10000 Men, to make head against the Russians, in case they should attempt by the Help of a Frost next Winter to pass the Bothnick Gulph, and to make a second Invasion into the Kingdom. Private Letters from Dresden give an Account, that the Electoral Prince riding in a Coach over the Bridge on the Elbe, alighted and kneeled down before a Crucifix standing there (a Remainder of the Popery in former Times); which the King of Poland his Father being acquainted with, he caused a Guard to be placed near it to prevent any Person's doing the like. It is talked the Prince has declared he will not suffer any but Roman Catholicks about his Person, and has already dismissed his Service all Protestants, two excepted; but that the King of Poland has caused Remonstrances to be made to him, that such Proceedings in a Country inhabited by zealous Lutherans, would endanger all the Roman Catholicks together with his own Person. Baron Lewendal, Great Marshal of the Court, has resigned all his Employments.

From the Harlem Courant, dated Nov. 7.

Hambourg, Nov. 3. Letters from Dantzick advise, that the Magistrates have given Orders to their Governour of Fort Weixelmunde, that in case the Swedish Ships should attack the Russian Commadore, he should not permit the latter to pass by the Fort; which Order was communicated to both Parties;

Parties: But the Ruſſian having told [illegible] Secretary of the City, that in caſe of need he was reſolved to paſs by the Fort, and rather have his Ships deſtroyed by their Cannon than by the Swedes, his Maſter knowing Means how to make himſelf paid ten times the Value of his Ships; upon which the Magiſtrates [illegible] their Order, and gave the Ruſſian Commander Leave to paſs, ſo that the Swedes not being able to come up with him by reaſon of the Shallows in the River, they left off firing a Gun, but expreſſed great Diſſatisfaction at the Cry, threatning them to be revenged on their Shipping. In the mean while no Corn can be ſhipped off, and the Ships laden with it are in Danger of being kept there all the Winter. The Maſters of the Ships of foreign Nations have given the Ruſſian to underſtand, that it was to be [illegible] their Sailors would take a Reſolution to employ Force againſt him, but he continues notwithſtanding to obſtruct the Navigation.
